

Francisco Cordero, MSW, MPS, Clinical Director of Exodus Center for Trauma Innovation
Francisco Cordero is a spiritually centered human services practitioner currently working as the Associate Clinical Director at the Exodus Center for Trauma Innovation in East Harlem. Francisco has over 25 years in the field working in both New York City and Chicago servicing justice-impacted and other marginalized populations. Francisco has extensive experience with multicultural program development in a variety of settings including trauma work, dual-diagnosis, and substance abuse treatment. Francisco acquired his Master of Social Work from Loyola University- Chicago and had the privilege of obtaining a Master of Professional Studies from the only program of its kind offered in the United States by the New York Theological Seminary's North Campus located within Sing-Sing Correctional Facility while incarcerated. Following his release Francisco has devoted his education, experience, and energy to implementing both restorative and transformative justice principles to trauma-informed practices and help facilitate culturally appropriate interventions to the communities in which he serves.